

Environmental Policy - Malmsten Group

At Malmsten Group, we want to make a real difference.

What we do today impacts tomorrow, and we take responsibility for ensuring that our operations contribute to a sustainable future for both people and the environment.

We see environmental responsibility as a natural part of our daily work, where every employee plays an important role and can contribute.

We commit to:

- Developing and delivering products and services with the lowest possible environmental impact, considering the full lifecycle.
- Using resources responsibly and actively working to reduce waste, emissions and energy consumption.
- Preventing pollution and protecting the environment in all parts of our operations.
- Complying with applicable environmental legislation and other relevant requirements.
- Integrating environmental considerations into our decisions, processes and collaborations.
- Supporting our customers in making sustainable choices through our products and services.
- Continuously improving our environmental performance and management.

Together, we create a business we can be proud of – today and in the future.
